FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New Service Team Focuses on Construction Law

Minneapolis, MN (July 19, 2018) – Moss & Barnett, A Professional Association, is pleased to announce an expansion of the firm's service offering with the creation of a new practice area devoted to Construction Law.

This team of attorneys, including preeminent construction lawyers Curt Smith and Aaron Dean who have more than 50 combined years of construction law experience, advises on both public and private construction projects – from design and planning to contract negotiation, preparation, bidding and review, construction, surety/bond issues, and insurance coverage and claims. We counsel clients on dispute avoidance and resolution as well as resolving issues with regulatory authorities, including OSHA and licensing boards.

We advise a full range of construction industry participants, including owners, architects, engineers, contractors, material suppliers, and subcontractors.

The firm's Chief Executive Officer, Tom Shroyer, noted: "Although we have been practicing construction law throughout our history, the establishment of our new Construction Law Practice Area reflects the amazing growth of demand for our services in this area, as well as the expansion in the number and sophistication of our service offerings to the industry. This new practice area enables us to more readily share knowledge, experience and resources, and to deliver enhanced service and value to our construction industry clients.”
